Kolkata Q3 2024

Launches

Kolkata's surges ahead with highest quarterly growth in new residential launches among the top 7 cities

Kolkata residential market experienced a significant uptick in new launches during Q3 2024. Accounting for 3% of the total new launches across the top 7 cities, Kolkata witnessed a remarkable 44% quarterly growth, with approximately 3,100 units launched. However, this figure represents a marginal 6% decline compared to the same period last year.

A notable shift in geographical preference was observed in Q3 2024. North Kolkata emerged as the leading zone for new launches, surpassing West Kolkata, which had topped the charts in Q2 2024. North Kolkata contributed 48% of the total new launches, reflecting a substantial 187% quarterly growth. South Kolkata followed closely with a 23% share with a 53% quarterly growth. West Kolkata recorded the lowest share at 4%, marking an 84% quarterly decline.

In terms of budget segmentation, the current quarter witnessed dominance of affordable and luxury segments, accounting for 37% and 20% of the total new launches, respectively.

Sales Trend

South Kolkata continues to outperform other zones in housing sales on quarterly basis

Kolkata's residential real estate market experienced a cooling period during the third quarter of 2024. Contributing approximately 4% to the overall sales volume across India's top seven cities, Kolkata witnessed nearly 4,000 housing units being absorbed. This figure represents a 13% decline compared to the previous quarter and a steeper 25% year-over-year drop from Q3 2023.

Despite a 22% quarterly decline in housing sales, South Kolkata maintained its position as the most active zone, accounting for 30% of city's overall sales. North and East Kolkata followed closely with 28% and 22% shares, respectively. West Kolkata captured 16% of the market, while the central zone accounted for the remaining share. Notably, North and Central Kolkata were the only zones to experience growth in home sales on a quarter-on-quarter basis.

Available Inventory

Kolkata ranks second for the steepest decline in available inventory, both quarterly and yearly

Kolkata's residential real estate market experienced a contraction in available housing stock during the third quarter of 2024. The city recorded a substantial quarterly decline of 3% and a significant annual decline of 17%, ranking second among the top seven Indian cities in terms of available inventory reduction. This decline brought the total available inventory down to approximately 25,900 units.

South Kolkata maintained its position as the zone with the largest share of available housing inventory, accounting for 30%. West and East Kolkata followed closely with 23% each and North Kolkata with 22% share. The city's available housing stock is predominantly concentrated in the affordable segment, which comprises a significant 52% of the total available inventory.

As of Q3 2024, Kolkata's inventory overhang stands at 16 months, marking a one-month increase compared to the previous quarter.

Outlook

Kolkata's residential market is poised for a positive trajectory in the coming quarter of 2024, with strong indicators pointing towards sustained growth in sales volume and price appreciation, particularly within the affordable housing segment. Recent data highlights a significant rise in property registrations, fueled by a burgeoning middle class and increasing demand for well-connected, budget-friendly options. Developers are strategically focusing on mid-sized apartments with modern amenities to cater to this growing buyer pool, while also capitalizing on the ongoing infrastructure development initiatives which are enhancing connectivity and further boosting property values. Although potential market fluctuations due to global economic trends should be considered, the overall sentiment is expected to remain optimistic.
